Governor Fails Again to Protect Working Families

This year's legislative session did not result in much progress for California's working families.

As we enter 2008, the fate of health care reform remains unclear. The state Assembly passed a comprehensive reform bill late last year, but the state Senate Health Committee voted it down in January. California's unions will continue to work on health care reform legislation that will ensure everyone has access to affordable, quality health care.

The governor stood in the way of progress for working families by rejecting bills that would have restored benefits to injured workers, supported locked out workers, and increased penalties for the willful misclassification of independent contractors. Despite the efforts of the Chamber of Commerce, labor successfully opposed and stopped efforts to take away daily overtime pay and lunch breaks for workers.

California workers were dealt a serious blow with the legislature's ratification of tribal gaming compacts negotiated by the governor. These compacts will allow the largest expansion of gambling in United States history while providing no enforceable workers' rights to organize a union and bargain collectively.

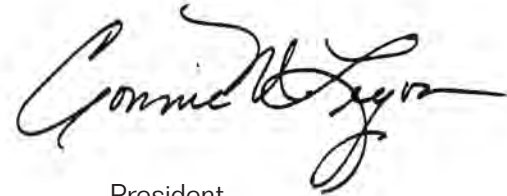

Many legislators lost their 100% labor voting records because they chose to stand against workers and on the side of four extremely wealthy tribal casino owners. Working families will decide what side they are on during the February 2008 election.

We look forward to working in partnership with our unions and our members on an aggressive 2008 legislative agenda that will continue to protect and advance workers' rights.

In Unity,

Executive Secretary-Treasurer

President
